With this issue, the "Communique" begins an occasional series on the backbone of the MSU College of Osteopathic Medicine's advanced clinical training -- its affiliated hospitals. Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills was one of the first to be affiliated with the medical school. On the cover (clockwise) are: one of the hospital's towers; MSU-COM graduate and Botsford intern Kevin O'Connell; and Botsford's DME and medical director Philip Adler, D.O., talking with MSU-COM alum L. Bing Liem.

BOTSFORD GENERAL HOSPITAL:
"DEDICATED TO TEACHING"

Since the inception of the Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine ten years ago, Botsford General Hospital has been an important base of clinical training for its medical students.

Nestled behind the historic Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills, the 310-bed facility was originally constructed in 1963, with the south tower added in 1971 and a professional building in 1977.

According to Russ Tuttle, director of community relations, Botsford maintains a patient census in excess of about 90%, handles more then 1500 births and 28,000 emergency room visits each year.

Staff for the hospital includes nearly 1300 employees, 250 physicians, 30 interns, and 53 residents in 13 specialties.

Future plans include acquisition of a nearby school, including seven acres of campus, for administrative offices, Tuttle said.

Hospital departments include anesthesiology; general practice; internal medicine; neurology (psychiatry and psychology); obstetrics and gynecology; and ophthalmology, otolaryngology, and maxillofacial plastic surgery.

Other departments include orthopedics, pathology, pediatrics, radiology and surgery (plastic, proctology, pulmonary-cardiovascular, urology, and thoracic).

Medical education at Botsford

MSU-COM interns and residents serving at Botsford almost universally noted the strong academic emphasis at the hospital.

"This is a hospital dedicated to teaching," said '80 graduate Bing Liem. "You can sense that the whole hospital staff is committed to providing quality medical education as well as quality patient care."
Medical director and director of medical education at Botsford is Philip Adler, D.O., who recently served as president of the American Osteopathic Association.

"We have a very good working relationship with the College," Dr. Adler said, pointing out that more than two-thirds of the clerks, half the interns, and 40% of the residents were MSU-COM students or alumni. In addition, nearly half the professional staff holds clinical faculty appointments in the College, he said.

The clerks, who are advanced medical students beginning clinical training in the hospital setting, rotate through the internal medicine, obstetrics and gynecology, newborn nursery, general surgery and anesthesiology, and pediatrics services at Botsford.

Selective rotations are also available in radiology, orthopedics, neurology and others, Dr. Adler said.

The educational program at Botsford follows mutual protocols for clerks established between the hospital and the College, Dr. Adler said. In keeping with the osteopathic tradition he emphasized that every effort is made to demonstrate the use of the musculoskeletal component in health and disease as it relates to hospitalized patients.

Dr. Adler is also responsible for medical education at Zieger Osteopathic Hospital, now the Michigan Osteopathic Medical Center, Inc. - West Unit. This arrangement will continue until the Center opens its new hospital, he said.

NEW ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE AT MSU COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE

Nine changes in the administrative structure of the MSU College of Osteopathic Medicine have occurred over the summer, including the appointment of two persons new to the medical school.

New personnel are Katherine E. White, Ph.D., acting assistant dean for student affairs, and Elissa L. Gatlin, Ph.D., assistant director of admissions.

Dr. White has worked with students in residence hall programs at MSU from 1963 to 1972 when she was named assistant to the vice president for student affairs. Since 1973 she has served as assistant vice president for student affairs and services at the university.

Dr. White succeeds Robert Fedore, Ph.D., who has taken a position as professor of community health science.

She holds the Ph.D. and M.A. degrees from MSU, and the B.S. degree from the University of Maryland.

Dr. Gatlin most recently served as assistant professor in the Department of Special Education at Northeastern Oklahoma State University in Tahlequah, where she also became actively involved in recruitment and work with student groups. She has also served as a teaching and research assistant at MSU's Department of Audiology and Speech Sciences, a speech and language therapist for the Michigan School for the Blind, and a substitute teacher for the Gary (Indiana) public schools.

She holds the Ph.D. and M.A. degrees from MSU, and the B.S. degree from Western Michigan University.

Other administrative changes include:

- Philip E. Greenman, D.O., former associate dean for academic affairs, has been named associate dean;
- Donald E. McBride, D.O., former assistant dean for graduate and continuing medical education, has been named associate dean for academic affairs;
- Gail Riegel, Ph.D., former coordinator for graduate study, has been named assistant dean for curriculum;
- David Marler, Ph.D., former assistant to the associate dean, has been named assistant to the dean;
- Celia B. Guro, Ph.D., former assistant to the dean, has been named coordinator of faculty development;
- Bruce L. Miles, Ph.D., former acting assistant dean for educational resources, has been named coordinator of educational resources;
- Lucia M. Palacios, M.S.W., former student adviser, has been named coordinator for academic advisement in the Office of Student Affairs.
ANNUAL PICNIC DRAWS RECORD CROWD

More than 150 persons attended the annual picnic sponsored by the Students' Associates Auxiliary at Patriarche Park in East Lansing.

In addition to plentiful food and fellowship, the group enjoyed volleyball, frisbee, and baseball.

CLINICAL FACULTY

Peter Krenitsky, D.O., clinical professor of osteopathic medicine, gave a lecture on "Pheochromocytoma: Diagnosis and Treatment" as part of the urology seminar held July 19 at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. The seminar was sponsored by Eaton, Lilly, Roche and SmithKline and French Labs.

Augustine L. Perrotta, D.O., clinical faculty member in the Department of Osteopathic Medicine, was featured on Mutual Broadcasting's radio show "Decisions of the '80s." He discussed the myths and misunderstandings surrounding the osteopathic profession to a potential audience of more than 20 million persons. The program, which was aired July 11 in Detroit, was fed to more than 900 stations throughout the United States, and on Armed Forces Radio in Europe and Asia. Dr. Perrotta is from Highland Park.

Ted H. Schwartzfeld, D.O., clinical assistant professor of otorhinolaryngology in the Department of Osteopathic Medicine, has been elected as associate member of the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. Believed to be the first osteopathic physician accepted into the organization, Dr. Schwartzfeld is from Farmington Hills.

Gary L. Slick, D.O., associate clinical professor of medicine from Detroit, has been appointed as chairman of the High Blood Pressure Committee of the Michigan Heart Association.

FACULTY

Teresa Bernardz, M.D., professor of psychiatry, was invited to participate in an international conference on "Creative Women in Changing Societies," sponsored by the United Nations Institute for Training and Research in Oslo, Norway, July 9-13. She presented a paper on "Defiance and the Empaciation of Women." She was also invited to participate in three panels at the Forum Conference in Copenhagen, Denmark, for the UN Mid-Decade on Women, July 14-19.

Gaston E. Blom, M.D., professor of psychiatry and of elementary and special education, and medical coordinator of the University Center for International Rehabilitation, discussed the "Emotional Aftermath of Disasters" at a workshop for community workers on the May 13 Kalamazoo tornado. The workshop, held June 13, was sponsored by the Kalamazoo Community Mental Health Board, and was covered on the 6 and 11 p.m. news by WOTV, Grand Rapids.

Michael H. Branson, Ph.D., associate professor of community health science, presented a paper entitled "Planning Models for a University-Based Ambulatory Care Center" at the Second International Conference on System Science in Health Care. The conference was held July 14-17 in Montreal. Thomas Helmrath, M.D., associate dean for clinical services in the College of Human Medicine, and Robert Reck, M.B.A., are coauthors.

Daniel J. Bronstein, S.J.D., associate professor of psychiatry and of resource development, presented a paper on "Federal Regulation of Toxic Chemicals" at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association, July 31 to August 8 in Honolulu.
Gary H. Campbell, D.O., associate professor of family medicine, will begin a training program in ecological medicine under the direction of Theron G. Randolph, M.D., at American International Hospital in Zion, Illinois. He then will assume a position at the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine as associate professor of preventative medicine and public health January 1, 1981.

John Casbergue, Ph.D., professor in the Office of Medical Education Research and Development, and Jon Calvert are authors of "Role of Faculty Development in Geriatrics," published in Family Medicine Curriculum and Care of the Elderly (Proceedings), July 1980.

Jim Gard, Ph.D., assistant professor of radiology, has joined the Quaker Oats Company as a research analyst in the marketing information division, and Thomas S. Harle, M.D., professor of radiology, will take a position October 1 at the University of Texas Medical School at Houston.

Karen Johnson, M.D., instructor and resident in the Department of Psychiatry, was a visiting professor at St. George's School of Medicine, in Grenada, West Indies, April 30-May 2. She spoke on "Self-Care of Medical Students" and "Self-Care: A Woman Psychiatry Resident's Perspective."

Brigitte Jordan, Ph.D., associate professor of anthropology, gave workshops June 6-7 on "Childbearing: An International Perspective" at the San Francisco Regional Conference for Women. The session was convened by the U.S. Department of State in preparation for the World Conference on Women in Copenhagen. On July 28, Dr. Jordan spoke to family practice residents at St. Lawrence Hospital on "Alternative Birthing Options."

Kathryn Kolasa, Ph.D., associate professor of food science and human nutrition and of community health science, was asked to present a lecture on nutrition education and changing behavior at the Western Hemisphere Nutrition conference, held August 11, in Los Angeles. The international conference was supported in part by the American Medical Association.

Joseph Meites, Ph.D., professor of physiology, attended the International Congress of Physiological Sciences in Budapest, Hungary, where he chaired a symposium and presented a paper on brain opiates and endocrine function. He also chaired a meeting of the Commission on Endocrinology of the International Union of Physiological Sciences, and met with the Council of International Brain Organization.

Ernest W. Retzlaff, Ph.D., professor of biomechanics, presented two papers at the annual conference sponsored by the Cranial Academy, held at the Holiday Inn O'Hare in Chicago. Titles were "Structure of Cranial Sutures in Man" and "Functional Significance of Cranial Sutures." Dr. Retzlaff also discussed "Pulmonary Physiology" as part of the respiratory and allergic diseases seminar sponsored by the Osteopathic General Practitioners of Michigan in Benton Harbor.

Evelyn M. Rivera, Ph.D., professor of zoology, has been named faculty intern in the Office of the President for fall term. Dr. Rivera, who has done extensive reseach on breast cancer, will continue most of her teaching and research activities.
Alvin L. Rogers, Ph.D., associate professor of microbiology and public health, presented a workshop on opportunistic fungal diseases, sponsored by the American Society for Microbiology at the University of Miami Medicine School, and attended the annual medical mycology meeting and annual meeting of ASM. He also took part in a seminar on "Recent Advances in Mycotic Infections: Diagnosis, Therapy and Taxonomy (A 'Patient Care Team' Program)" at the Chicago Medical Mycological Society.

Charles Tweedle, Ph.D., associate professor of anatomy and zoology, and G. L. Hatton, Ph.D., professor of psychology, are the authors of "Glial Cell Enclosure of Neurosecretory Endings" published in Brain Research 192:555-562.

Malcolm E. Williamson, D.O., associate clinical professor osteopathic medicine from Trenton, was a contributor to a slide presentation for national distribution as a teaching aid for thyroiditis. Other contributors discussed hyperthyroidism, laboratory aid in thyroid diseases and the thyroid nodule. Sponsor was Armour Pharmaceutical.

ALUMNI

Robert M. Acosta, D.O., 1977 alumnus, has been appointed assistant professor in the Department of Family Medicine at the College of Osteopathic Medicine of the Pacific. He is in private practice in San Francisco.

Arthur L. Bouier, D.O., 1977 alumnus, was made chief resident for the Class of 1981 at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital. He is currently a resident in internal medicine there.

Robert T. Brengel, D.O., 1978 alumnus and medical director of the Brown City Area Health Center, transferred his practice site from the Linden Medical Center in May. He is practicing family medicine and obstetrics on the staffs of Lapeer County General Hospital and Marlette Community Hospital.

Fred K. Hall, D.O., 1973 alumnus, began a fellowship in neonatology at the Children's Mercy Hospital of Kansas City, Missouri, on August 1.

Melvin B. Saltzman, D.O., 1975 alumnus, and Eugene Oliveri, D.O., clinical faculty member in the Department of Osteopathic Medicine, are coauthors of "Acute Bleeding from the Upper Part of the Gastrointestinal Tract: Initial Management." The article was published in the July 1980 issue of The D.O.

STUDENTS

Jerel H. Glassman, M.P.H., osteopathic medical student, presented a paper on "Mortality Effects of Occupational Exposure to Taconite Ore Dust" at the annual meeting of the Society for Epidemiologic Research, held June 19 at the University of Minnesota.

Douglas H. Joyce, M.S., osteopathic medical student, is the author of the cover article in the May–June 1980 issue of the Student Doctor. The article is "Indications for Transvenous Pacing with Atrioventricular and Intraventricular Conductions Defects Complicating Acute Myocardial Infarction."
