Since its inception, the Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine has benefited from the cooperation and teaching efforts of osteopathic family physicians who have trained our students in their practices. Their work is an integral and vital part of our clinical education program. We are indeed grateful for their willing commitment of time, energy, thought and resource to the College and its students.

COMMUNIQUE

"Communique," a newsletter publication of the Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine, is issued 15 times a year through the Health and Medicine Section of the Department of Information Services, A314 E. Fee Hall, East Lansing, Michigan, 48824; telephone 517/353-0820. Members of the Editorial Advisory Committee include David Marler, Ph.D. (chairman); Henry Beckmeyer III, D.O.; Francis A. Bernier, Ph.D.; Gordon Spink, D.O., Ph.D.; Robert C. Ward, D.O.; Nancy Houston, B.A. (editor) and Patricia Grauer, M.A. (managing editor). Circulation manager is Mary Palmer. Production is done by Beth Stephens and Connie Burch; photography by Dick Wesley. Date of publication of the next issue is Monday, August 25, 1980. Deadline for material to be included in that issue is Thursday, August 14.

PRECEPTORS, SENIOR PARTNERS VITAL TO EDUCATION AT MSU-COM

The age-old maxim of clinical education—"watch one, do one, teach one"—has been made much more educationally sophisticated in the Preceptor and Junior Partnership Programs of the Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine.

The programs, administered through the Department of Family Medicine, provide intensive family practice experience for medical students in the offices of community physicians who volunteer their talent and time.

These physicians, located throughout the nation, act as teachers, role models, clinical supervisors and resource personnel for the medical students.

Codirectors of the programs are Margot Kurtz, Ph.D., specialist, and John Bell, D.O., associate professor of family medicine.

Early Clinical Exposure

In keeping with the College's philosophy of early and continuing clinical exposure, medical students are introduced to basic physical examination skills, medical ethics, and doctor/patient relationship skills during their first three terms in the classroom.

During their fourth through eighth terms of study, students and clinical preceptors work together 36 hours a term to meet concrete educational objectives established by the College as appropriate for the students' level of training.

Sometime after completing the Preceptor Program, students are required to spend six continuous weeks with a family physician in a full-time rotation. This experience, the Junior Partnership Program, allows the students to participate more fully in comprehensive, continuous care of ambulatory patients.

The Preceptorship Program

Nearly 280 physicians in Michigan and nine other states volunteer their time as preceptors. The majority are clustered in Lansing, Detroit, Flint, Livonia, Lapeer, Pontiac and Grand Rapids.

The preceptorship courses consist of a five-term sequence in which each succeeding experience increases in complexity and in which students are expected to assume greater responsibility. Clinical expectations increase parallel to the didactic training students are taking simultaneously in the classroom.

The sequence includes:

- Fourth term: Histories and physical examinations, use of doctor-patient relationship skills, minor office procedures, osteopathic examination, and practice management
For each preceptorship experience, both students and preceptors receive a set of objectives which need to be accomplished by the students. They are encouraged to follow a four-step training model which allows initial evaluation of the student by the preceptors, and melding of expectations held by the student, the preceptor and the College. The preceptor plans and implements the training experience to meet these expectations, and then both student and physician have opportunity to assess the experience.

"Timely given feedback from the preceptor to the student is probably the most important part of this learning experience," said Dr. Kurtz. "It points out to the student areas of strength and weakness, and thus may facilitate progress."

In addition to work in the physician's office, the student is also required to participate in an on-campus debriefing seminar facilitated by Drs. Kurtz and Bell, and to complete a written assignment which relates to the course objectives.

Two types of preceptorship experiences are offered by the college. Intensively scheduled preceptorships are done in a concentrated block of time usually between terms. Regularly scheduled preceptorships are taken one afternoon a week for a continuous nine weeks.

Students also practice under the supervision of faculty in ambulatory care clinics administered by the Department of Family Medicine.

The preceptors, who receive clinical faculty rank in the College, are selected through a screening process which includes application, visitation and interview. Each year preceptors are encouraged to attend at least one workshop offered by the College for them.

Junior Partnership Program

Students who successfully complete the five terms of clinical training in the Preceptorship Program enter the Junior Partnership, a concentrated clinical experience in primary care. Objectives of this program extend and deepen the objectives of the Preceptorship Program.

During the six-week course, students are expected to demonstrate their ability to acquire histories, perform physical examinations, arrive at tentative diagnoses, confirm the diagnoses, and to outline a program of treatment using the osteopathic approach. In addition, they are required to evaluate the treatment, state the prognosis, use specific psychomotor skills, and to manage patients in both the hospital and home environment.

Finally, they are expected to recognize the psychological or emotional components of presenting complaints, define the community and public health aspects of a private family practice, and to define the essential elements of office management.

In short, the objectives emphasize that students achieve performance levels sufficient for graduation and entrance into osteopathic internships.

More than 150 physicians in Michigan and 13 other states volunteer their time as senior partners. Many of these physicians are also active in the Preceptorship Program.

SECOND SCIENTIFIC SEMINAR AT MSU-COM SCHEDULED FOR SEPTEMBER 26-27

The second annual scientific seminar presented by alumni from the MSU College of Osteopathic Medicine will be held at MSU's Kellogg Center Friday and Saturday, September 26-27. THE PROGRAM IS OPEN TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS.

Medical update topics will include presentations on the infant nutrition controversies, headaches, medical emergencies encountered in family practice, OMT and its application to the hospitalized patient, aortic valve disease and athletic injuries to the knee.

The event will also include a banquet, box lunch, the MSU-Western Michigan football game, and post-game cocktails.

For information or registration, contact Sandy Kilbourn, coordinator for continuing medical education, MSU-COM, A333 E. Fee, 517/353-8822.
