1980 HOODING CEREMONIES HELD
JUNE 6 IN UNIVERSITY AUDITORIUM

Hooding ceremonies honoring 33 women and 78 men who are graduating from the MSU College of Osteopathic Medicine were held Friday, June 6 in the University Auditorium.

Students eligible to participate included all those who are expected to receive the D.O. degree within the next year.

The program included comments by Dean Myron S. Magen, who also read a letter of congratulations from Michigan’s Governor William Milliken, Assistant Dean for Student Affairs Robert R. Fedore, and by Class President Terence J. Ross.

Philip E. Greenman, associate dean for academic affairs, presented the candidates for hooding, and the class had selected faculty Gerald G. Osborn (Psychiatry) and Ralph F. Otten (Osteopathic Medicine) to present the hoods.

Student awards included:

--The Fred L. Mitchell Memorial Award to David Neff, presented by Myron C. Beal (Biomechanics).
--The Award for Excellence in Psychiatry to John Beyer and Joyce Johnson, presented by Gerald G. Osborn.
--The Upjohn Achievement Award to Pierce Sherrill, presented by Lynn F. Brumm (chairman, Family Medicine).
--The Sandoz Award to L. Bing Liem, presented by Dr. Brumm.
--The Family Medicine Osteopathic Concept Award to David Tuller, presented by Dr. Brumm.
--The Richard L. Alper Memorial Award for Community Service to Joyce Johnson, presented by Sidney Katz (chairman, Community Health Science).
--The Judith K. Weiswasser Memorial Award for the Outstanding Woman Graduate to Nancy Rancour, presented by Linda Welch Hernandez (Family Medicine).
--The Award for Academic Excellence in Medicine to Michael Zakem, presented by Walter C. Mill (chairman, Osteopathic Medicine).
--The Jean M. Bubeck Memorial Scholarship Award to Cheryl Mikolajczak, presented by Joseph R. Walczak (Osteopathic Medicine).
--The Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons Award to David Neff, presented by Raymond E. Huldin, president of MAOP&S.

Music for the ceremonies was provided by Carolyn Hoover. The hooding planning committee included Helen Head, Dot Thullen, and Joyce Kolomyjec (Office of the Dean), Sandy Kilbourn (coordinator for continuing medical education) and Robert Fedore and Mary Anderson (Office of Student Affairs).

The ceremonies were followed by a reception at the MSU Union and a dinner/dance at Long’s Convention Center.

125 STUDENTS BEGIN STUDIES AS 1980 MSU-COM ENTERING CLASS

The 1980 entering class of the MSU College of Osteopathic Medicine began studies on the campus June 18, following two days of orientation and registration.

The class holds a total of 151 premedical degrees, including 123 baccalaureate, 25 masters, and three doctorates. Forty-four majored in biology, ten in chemistry, nine in zoology, and seven in medical technology. Other majors included agriculture, biochemistry, mathematics, psychology and philosophy.

Fifty-three of the students are married, and the class has a total of 50 dependents.

One hundred thirteen members of the class are legal residents of Michigan, including 20 from Oakland, 18 from Wayne, 13 from Ingham, and 11 from Kent counties. Other states represented include California, Colorado, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas and Utah.

Undergraduate colleges attended include 30 from MSU, 12 from the University of Michigan, eight from Oakland University and six from Wayne State University, with 103 of the degrees earned at Michigan colleges and universities.

The students are enrolled in 20 hours of classwork, which includes courses in human gross anatomy, histology, medical biochemistry, historical and biological foundations of osteopathic medicine, and comprehensive patient evaluation. This is the first entering class of MSU-COM to take a regular four-year curriculum.

HEALTH SERVICES V.P. POST CREATED AT MSU

The establishment of the position of vice president for health services and facilities was approved May 23 by the MSU Board of Trustees.

The Board also named William R. Schonbein as acting vice president in the new post.

The position includes responsibility for management of all university health care programs and the operation of all on-campus clinical facilities, including the Clinical Center, Veterinary Clinical Center, Olin Hospital, and the Animal Health Diagnostic Laboratory.

The new vice president will report to the vice president for finance and operations, and communicate with the provost on coordination of health care programs with academic programs. A Health Services Advisory Committee -- including the deans of the Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine, Human Medicine, Veterinary Medicine and Nursing -- will provide a primary linkage between the medical programs and clinical operations.

Schonbein served as assistant dean for management in the College of Human Medicine, and assistant chairman in the Department of Radiology. He holds the M.S. degree from the Sloan School of Management, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he was an Alfred P. Sloan Fellow.

SPIEGEL ACTING ADMINISTRATOR OF MSU'S CLINICAL CENTER

Peter Spiegel, associate administrator at the MSU Clinical Center since June 1977, has been named acting administrator in a recent appointment by the MSU Board of Trustees.

He succeeds Donald E. Gerhardt, who has taken a post as coordinator of clinics for Group Health Plan, Inc., St. Paul, Minnesota.

Spiegel's duties include overseeing a $2.2 million budget, a staff of more than 100 persons in administrative and medical support services, and a yearly total of more than 55,000 outpatient visits.

Before coming to MSU, he was administrator of the Ambulatory Care Program, Concourse Division, at the Bronx-Lebanon Hospital Center in New York, and held administrative residencies at LaGuardia Hospital and Health Insurance Plan, both in New York.

NEW DMES NAMED AT AFFILIATED HOSPITALS

New educational appointments in hospitals affiliated with MSU-COM include: Henry Olen, medical director and director of medical education at Saginaw Osteopathic Hospital; Robert Bowman, DME at Grand Rapids Osteopathic Hospital; Donald M. Petersen, medical director and DME at Jackson Osteopathic Hospital; and C. P. Dehlin, acting DME at Lansing General Hospital.
MIGRANT HEALTH CLINICS
OPEN IN ST. JOHNS AND MASON

Health clinics conducted by medical students and faculty from MSU's College of Osteopathic Medicine and College of Human Medicine for migrant agriculture workers opened in St. Johns and in Mason in June.

Co-sponsor of the clinics, first held in 1972, is Michigan Economics, Inc., formerly United Migrants for Opportunity, Inc.

The St. Johns series of clinics will be held through August 27 at St. Johns Episcopal Church, 400 E. Walker. Clinic hours are 7 to 10:30 p.m.

In Mason clinic sessions will be held through August 25 at the First United Methodist Church, 201 East Ash. Hours are 7 to 10:30 p.m.

Health care will be provided under the direct supervision of MSU faculty physicians. In addition to medical personnel, clinic volunteers include MSU students in nursing, medical technology, and nutrition, as well as pharmacy students from Ferris State College.

A pharmacy, under the direction of Bruce Engren, Pharm. D., of MSU's Clinical Center, will be open at each migrant health clinic.

Services also include routine laboratory tests and health education. Counseling is available on infant nutrition, food stamps, and family planning. Child care is provided while other family members are receiving health care.

Referrals are made to medical specialists in the Lansing area, including ophthalmologists and dentists. Other referrals are for surgery, blood disorders, neurological problems, heart problems and hearing evaluation.

Medical school coordinators for the St. Johns Clinic are Dr. Roy J. Harvey, Dr. Linda Hernandez and Dr. L. A. Marohn of MSU-COM's Department of Family Medicine, and osteopathic medical student Jan Swanson.

Coordinators for the Mason migrant health clinic are Dr. Blake Smith of the College of Human Medicine Department of Family Practice and M.D. student Ascension Mena.

To prepare for work in the clinics, students must participate in orientation seminars on the medical care system, legal and economic issues, nutrition problems and other topics important to health care for Mexican-American migrants.

HOWARD RECEIVES GUBERNATORIAL APPOINTMENT

James P. Howard, assistant dean for community affairs, has been appointed by Michigan Governor William G. Milliken to the Citizens' Panel on Smoking and Health.

The panel, part of a state effort to shift the emphasis of Michigan health programs toward prevention, will work with the Michigan Department of Public Health to develop a comprehensive statewide plan to reduce and prevent tobacco-related illness and death.
SECOND SCIENTIFIC SEMINAR AT MSU-COM
SCHEDULED FOR SEPTEMBER 26-27

The second annual scientific seminar presented by alumni from the MSU College of Osteopathic Medicine will be held at MSU's Kellogg Center Friday and Saturday, September 26-27.

Medical update topics will include presentations on the infant nutrition controversies, headaches, medical emergencies encountered in family practice, OMT and its application to the hospitalized patient, aortic valve disease and athletic injuries to the knee.

Presenters include alumni Ronald Marino, Howard S. Rossman, Kurt A. Barrett, Lorane Dick, Ronald Barrette, and Frederick Schreiber.

The event will also include a banquet, box lunch, the MSU-Western Michigan football game, and post-game cocktails.

For information or registration, contact Sandy Kilbourn, coordinator for continuing medical education, MSU-COM, A333 E. Fee, 517/353-8822.

RAUB, TERRY COMPLETE TRAINING PROGRAM

Daniel J. Raub and Matthew Terry, physicians in the Department of Family Medicine, have both recently received the M.A. in education from MSU, and have completed an intensive three-month non-credit program in family medicine faculty development conducted by the Office of Medical Education Research and Development. Both programs were sponsored by a grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Raub is the new director of the Family Medicine Clinic at Ingham Medical Center, and Terry is doing work at MSU's Clinical Center. Both are involved in departmental efforts to establish a university-based family medicine residency training program.

MSU-COM RESEARCHERS DOMINATE ARTICLES ON RESEARCH ON MANIPULATIVE THERAPY

Researchers from the Department of Biomechanics were dominant in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Osteopathic Association. Four of six articles on osteopathic research were contributed by MSU-COM faculty to Vol. 79:7.

They included "Interexaminer Agreement on Patient Improvement after Negotiated Selection of Tests" by Myron C. Beal, John P. Goodridge, William L. Johnston, and David G. McConnell; "Low Agreement of Findings in Neuromusculoskeletal Examinations by a Group of Osteopathic Physicians Using Their Own Procedures" by McConnell, Beal, Uri Dinnar (Haifa, Israel), Goodridge, Johnston, Zvi Karni (Haifa), Upledger, and Gilles Blum; "Classification of Diagnostic Tests Used with Osteopathic Manipulation" by Dinnar, Beal, Goodridge, Johnston, Karni, Fred L. Mitchell Jr., Upledger, and McConnell; and "Osteopathic Basics" by Beal.
HELEN WARD HEADING STATE AUXILIARY

Helen Ward recently assumed office as the president of the Auxiliary to the Michigan Osteopathic Association, an organization of more than 700 persons statewide.

A past president of the Auxiliary to the Macomb County Osteopathic Association, she has also served as recording secretary, scholarship chairperson, vice president and membership chairperson, and president-elect and state guild adviser for the state auxiliary.

She is the wife of Robert C. Ward, professor in the Office of Medical Education Research and Development.

STUDENT ASSOCIATE AUXILIARY OFFICER INSTALLATION

Officers were installed May 20 for the Student Associate Auxiliary at ceremonies at Lake o' the Hills Clubhouse in Haslett. The evening included live entertainment by the MSU Performing Arts Cabaret Theater, introduction of special guests, gifts of appreciation for outgoing officers, and an installation ceremony. Barbara Fici, the new president, gave a short address, and gifts were presented to advisers Mrs. Eugene Sherrod, Mrs. John Thornburg, Mrs. Bernard Kay, and Mrs. A.A. Grilli.
ROBERT F. BOND PRESENTED SECOND SCHWINGHAMER MEMORIAL

The chairman of the Department of Physiology at Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine, Robert F. Bond, presented the second annual lecture in memory of MSU physiology professor James M. Schwinghamer.

Bond presented his research on circulatory responses in hypovolemic shock, indicating the paradoxical vasodilation that often follows local vasoconstriction.

Bond had worked with Schwinghamer on research on cardiovascular control systems. James Schwinghamer was noted for his excellence in teaching physiology to undergraduate, graduate and professional students in all three of MSU's medical schools.

WORKSHOP ON ELECTRON MICROSCOPY INCLUDED EXTENSIVE PRACTICUMS AT CLINICAL CENTER

A unique workshop on the use of the electron microscope as a diagnostic tool was held in mid-May at MSU's Clinical Center.

Participants at the three-day workshop learned techniques which ranged from critical point drying to diagnostic tumor biopsies.

Faculty for the seminar included EM experts from around the nation. Members of the MSU Department of Pathology faculty participating included Shirley Siew, Robert W. Leader, Wanderly deMendonca, and Joan C. Mattson.

AUSTRALIAN EXPERT ON SKIN CANCER PRESENTED A SERIES OF SEMINARS AT MSU

Chev Kidson, an international authority on melanoma and director of the Queensland Institute of Medical Research in Brisbane, Australia, presented a series of lectures on skin cancers and DNA repair at MSU.

Dr. Kidson outlined the approaches his institution had taken to alleviate the problems of sun-induced skin cancers in Australia. Because of its latitude, beautiful beaches, and lifestyles of its people, Australia has the highest incidences of both total skin cancers and melanomas in the world.

Kidson noted the importance of normalization of pathology data in every service in the state, and the high success rate he had attained with surgery.
Brigitte Jordan (Anthropology) gave a workshop on "Cross-cultural Birthing" at the May 4 American Medical Student Association meeting. She also spoke on "Traditional Birth Attendants and the Conflict between Traditional and Modern Obstetrics" at a series on "Women and Health." Both were held at MSU.

Ronald C. Simons (Psychiatry) is the author of "The Resolution of the Latah Paradox," the cover article of the April 1980 issue of the Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease. In April, he was an invited discussant at the conference on "Attention-Structure in Human and Non-Human Primate Groups," at the Maison Des Sciences de L'Homme in Paris. In March he served as a consultant to the National Institute of Mental Health career grants program, and in June to the NIMH small grant program.

Kenneth Stringer (Pediatrics/’74) gave a lecture on "Epiphyseal Injuries in the Adolescent" at a sports medicine seminar for athletic trainers, coaches and physicians, held at MSU April 19.

Gaston E. Blom (Psychiatry) was a group leader at a Wingspread Conference on "Linking the Generations for the Caring Society," in Racine, Wisconsin, May 18-20. He also spoke on stress resistance in children at the Colorado Child and Adolescent Psychiatry Society conference June 7 in Denver. His topics were "PL 92-142 (The Mandatory Education Act for All Handicapped Children)" and "Heather's Story: A Case Study of Normalization."

Teresa Bernard (Psychiatry) was a lecturer at the annual meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Group Psychotherapy Society. She presented a whole-day workshop on "Sex Roles in Groups" at the University of Pennsylvania Department of Education May 16.

Duane M. Tester (Michigan Center for Continuing Education in Osteopathic Medicine) presented a paper on "The Role of State or Regional Organization in Continuing Medical Education" to the Academy of Osteopathic Directors appointed to the Pontiac branch of the American Cancer Society Professional Education Committee.

Shirley M. Johnson (Family Medicine) and Loudell Snow (Anthropology) gave a presentation on "Folk Medical Beliefs: Implications for Health Care" to the Michigan Public Health Association Community Health Division in Kalamazoo May 29.

Henry Krystal (Psychiatry) was a panel member at the Conference on Psychosocial and Pharmacological Treatment Approaches, Issues and Interrelationships" held by the National Academy of Sciences Institute of Medicine in Washington D.C. May 28-29. He was one of 40 invited to discuss future paths of integration of pharmacologic and psychologic approaches to health and its deviations.

Peter Krenitsky (Clinical-Osteopathic Medicine) from Warren has been selected for listing in Who's Who in America, 1980-81.
